

I am disgusted with Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election. Such actions make it a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation. I see this decision as one of the most Un-American plans we have encountered in some time.

Since this media giant wants to control what we can view because there seems there are no restrictions, this is a red flag that changes need made to stop such atrocities to the viewers who want honest and unbiased reporting.

Enough is enough of the misuse of public airways and the people are becoming sick of the abuses by some media.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
